Naznin Islam specialises in public and private children law proceedings. She has particular expertise in cases involving international elements, including child abduction and relocation. Naznin also deals with complex matters involving domestic violence and sexual abuse, mental health and non-accidental injuries.

Prior to joining chambers, Naznin practiced from Took's Court (Chambers of Michael Mansfield QC); headed an immigration department in a CAB; was Legal Advisor to AVID; and worked with the UNHCR in a consultancy role. More recently, Naznin was employed as a lawyer at the ECHR at the invitation of the court.

Naznin's considerable experience in immigration, judicial review, crime and human rights often assists her in effectively dealing with issues arising from children law matters. She has represented local authorities, parents, other relatives and intervenors as well as sports and media personalities. Naznin regularly appears before all levels of court, including the High Court and Court of Appeal.
